Re: Email phishing test

Dear Members of the Committee and the Board,

In response to your request to conduct a test of the District's email users and their proclivity to respond to and possibly act on phishing emails. A response to or opening of such and email, clicking on an embedded link or downloading an attachment would potentially put the District's systems at risk. Edge Technology Group LLC (Edge) was engaged to conduct an email phishing campaign in order to determine the potential response to such emails and in turn the vulnerability of the District's systems. Edge is a provider of IT services with a strong client base in the financial services and Hedge Fund industries. Edge provides systems support, data recovery and security controls to companies managing billions of dollars with offices in the United States, Europe, and Asia. The tests were conducted during February and March of this school year.

Procedures employed to test response to phishing emails

The objective of these tests was to determine rate at which District staff would open, download attachments or otherwise respond to phishing emails. A phishing email is a type of social engineering attack commonly used to install malware or other types of software geared to allow the sender to control the user's computer and/or network, steal user data, including login credentials and other stored security information or disable the computer entirely. These emails, used by an attacker, masquerading as a trusted entity, dupes a victim into opening the email. The recipient is then tricked into clicking a malicious link, or download an attachment, either of which can lead to the installation of malware, infiltrating and controlling the user's computer and or network and potentially freezing of the system as part of a ransomware attack

An attack can have devastating results. phishing is often used to gain a foothold in corporate or governmental networks as a part of a larger attack, such as an advanced persistent threat (APT) event. In this latter scenario, employees' systems are compromised in order to bypass security perimeters, distribute malware inside a closed environment, or gain privileged access to secured data.

The District utilizes Edu Tek Ltd. (Edu-Tek) to maintain and support the IT operations, and they were an invaluable resource throughout this process. The Edu Tek team was eager to contribute to the enhancement of the District's operations. Edge worked with Edu-Tek to coordinate the phishing tests.

Results of the tests

The details and results of tests conducted by Edge are documented in the attached report.

The first test was conducted in late February and consisted of various emails appearing to be from the likes of Yahoo, Amazon, Dropbox, Linkedin, Delta Airlines and Apple etc. 76 of the recipients or 35% opened these emails and 14 (6.5%) clicked on the embedded link. If these emails were actually malicious, clicking on the embedded link would have exposed the user's PC and possibly the District's network to a threat.

The second test was conducted in early March, two weeks after the Parkland, FL school shooting. The subject of the email was "school threat". Individuals or organizations sending these malicious emails have become very good at targeting an audience, such as using a school threat to school district email addresses. In this test 181 or 84% of the users opened the email and 25 (11.6%) clicked on the embedded link.

Conclusion

Overall, at least 84% of the District staff committed actions that were potentially harmful to the District's computers and networks. It is recommended that District–wide training be implemented and periodically repeated in order for the staff to remain vigilant. Those wishing to gain access to private systems and networks are becoming more sophisticated daily and the use of artificial intelligence (AI) to achieve their goals is also becoming more prevalent. Their methods have become more targeted in such ways that .it is more than likely that a school district would see emails entitled "school threat", with an attachment meant to do harm. The days of requested bank information from a Nigerian Prince are long gone.

Conclusion - concluded

There are various tools that can be utilized by the District to assist in the filtering of spam emails, but they come with Side effects (such as stripping graphics from emails) that the District may feel is too severe.

A training program can also be implemented which consists of a 45-minute online video that can be viewed and/or required to be viewed by the most frequent offenders. Edge will communicate information regarding these directly to the appropriate District personnel. An email announcing this program can also be sent to District staff and Edge will provide sample language that has been used for similar programs.

Closing

We appreciate the cooperation and assistance that we and the representatives from Edge received from the District and its consultants in providing this service to you. We are available to discuss the content of this report, or the District in general, at your convenience

Another N.Y school shooting threat leads to charges against Westchester teen

Hours after an anonymous social media threat, a teenager in a neighboring town was arrested for allegedly threatening a shooting in Westchester school district.

The 15-year-old was taken into custody at his home Wednesday morning after he shared a Snapchat post with threats of "shooting up the School," police said in a statement.

Police learned of the threat around 9:30 a.m. and quickly identified the teen. There is no threat to any Westchester schools at this time, police said.

In a Facebook post, police said they won't tolerate threats and encouraged parents to talk to their children about the importance of notifying authorities of social media activity that can be construed as threatening.
